

“In Seeing with Jesus, Jack Glasgow masterfully breaks down into significant pieces practical but deeply spiritual guidance for living with a Jesus worldview. In group or individual study, you will learn to use what we know about Jesus’ life to reflect on and develop your personal theological perspective based on Jesus. That perspective gives context to the thoughts and patterns that help determine even the moments of your life. The study of verses you may think you’ve known is surprisingly revealing. There is meat in every sentence, and you will want to read this more than once.”

“What if we could see the world through the eyes of Jesus today? Jack Glasgow shows us how Jesus saw the world in his time so that we can train our vision to see and live into the reign of God in our time.”

“Twenty-five years ago, I experienced firsthand Jack’s giftedness for inviting others into community, into a space to learn, grow, and reflect. Since that time, Jack has remained a trusted mentor and a dear friend.

“In his book, Jack once again invites others into communion, a sacred, intimate space, to sit at the feet of Jesus and to see through Jesus’ eyes the true kingdom of God. Here, we observe Jesus’ teachings on the meaning of true discipleship, we hear his repeated call for us to love deeply, and we see through his eyes what it means to be a true follower of Jesus, modeling a sacrificial, giving, and servant love that comes only from God through Jesus himself.

“While living in a world that espouses a different view, Jack invites us to a transformative way of seeing and into moments of deep self-reflection on how we are truly living out a Jesus worldview.”

“Jack Glasgow is one of the most gifted and dedicated pastors I know. He has faithfully taught the Scriptures, preached the gospel and led Zebulon Baptist Church for over four decades. He is a cherished friend and colleague and a valued leader in our fellowship.

“Through this book the world will be blessed by his significant interpretive skill and insights. Jack reminds us that the starting point for understanding God is Jesus and the starting point for interpreting the sixty-six books of the Bible is the four gospels. I commend this book to preachers and teachers to guide their preparation as well as for individual and small group study.

“The questions at the end of each chapter encourage the reader to reflect deeply on vital questions about discipleship. For anyone seeking a clearer understanding of the Jesus worldview, Jack’s guidance in this book is a tremendous gift.”

“You walk into the ‘Vision Shop’ in downtown Nazareth. They ask, ‘How may we help you?’ You say, ‘I want to see the world the way Jesus sees the world.’ They test your vision. It is blurry, indistinct, and dim. They write out a prescription. It says, ‘Read this book ASAP. It will help you see the world the way Jesus sees the world.’”

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Nurturing Faith has been a trusted ministry partner through the years. The published journal has been an important piece for me personally and for the congregation I serve. It reports stories of interest to Baptists and the larger Christian community with a voice that sounds quite different from many of the media voices in our day and age.

Baptist congregations such as our Zebulon Baptist Church family near Raleigh, North Carolina, need voices that resonate with the moderate to progressive Christian community. I have often said that Nurturing Faith helps us to articulate the ethos of our church and its people. That is why I have been a loyal supporter and enthusiastic board member through the years.

I appreciate the confidence that John Pierce and Bruce Gourley of Nurturing Faith placed in me as they asked me to write a book for congregations and individual Christians to read and discuss on the worldview of Jesus. They have been at the forefront of encouraging Christians to question much of what we hear from political, social, and media voices that claim to represent a Christian worldview. So often the Christian positions strongly advocated by these voices sound nothing like the teachings of Jesus revealed in the Gospels. Both of these men could have done a marvelous job writing this very book. Countless other teachers and pastors have better scholarly credentials to address the discussion of the worldview of Jesus. But they expressed a belief that a long-time pastor with a passion for helping Christians to see the world through the eyes of Jesus could write this book.

I also express my personal thanks to the Eula Mae and John Baugh Foundation for supporting the publishing of this book. I have known the Baugh family through many years in Baptist life. Their commitment to keeping alive a moderate Baptist voice that can articulate a better way of following Jesus has been unwavering. I hope that my efforts in this work will be helpful in articulating this good way of following Christ.

Finally, I write this book at a time when I'm excited about the new day that comes with the creation of the new company, Good Faith Media. For more than three decades the Baptist Center for Ethics/Ethics Daily and Baptists Today/Nurturing Faith have served the Christian and Baptist communities by telling the truth to us and calling for the best from us. They have always encouraged us to see the world through the eyes of Jesus. Coming together as one media company, they are combining creative and passionate staff and merging their resources and strengths to keep a clear voice speaking to and for Baptists and the larger Christian community for years to come.
